ALL HYENAS ARE NOT COWARDS.

Illustrative Encounters with Them in Somaliland.

Hyenas are noted as great cowards,
but I have come across a few exceptions.
When about sixty miles from Berbera, on my return journey, I camped close to a Somali zereba. Soon the head men came in and asked me to shoot a pack of six hyenas, as they had killed a great many sheep and goats. That morning they killed two sheep, and the same night jumped into the zereba and carried off a sheep and badly bit a young cow.

Next morning I saw two Somali men running after a hyena with spears, but he only kept about 100 yards in front, and as soon as they stopped he did the same and had a look at them, and on their returning he quietly walked on.

I was busy with a koodoo head at the time, so did not go after him, but evidently he wanted to see what I was doing and so came toward me. When about 100 yards off I put a bullet through his shoulder.

So much for No. 1. He knew how far a Somali could throw a spear, but not how far a rifle would carry.

Next day at noon we heard a great shouting about a mile off. After awhile I made out that a lion had killed one of my camels. I took the 4.50 express and started off. On arriving on the scene I found it was not a lion, but a hyena, and that the camel was not dead, but badly bitten on the hind parts.

A woman said the hyena was behind some low bushes about 150 yards off.
The bushes, three in number, were only 2½ feet high and on an open plain. As the Somali men had been making a great noise I said nothing would stop there.
However, I went to have a look, and when about seventy yards off the bush up came a head and took a good look at me, and then went down slowly, like a lion crouching. I went twenty yards closer, when up came the head to have another look. I took a steady aim, and next moment an express bullet between the eyes of a hyena finished him.

He was a very large and fat beast, with a good coat of hair, and had a good portion of a sheep in his inside.
Now I could imagine one going for a camel if starved, but not when fat, and at midday, with a man and woman accompanying the camels—a thick bush within 200 yards on the left, if he had wanted to get away. Instead of doing so he kept to the open country, with three bushes hardly large enough to conceal him, and then held his ground until shot dead. I think it showed great pluck. End of No. 2.

In the night the men heard some of the others howling, so at daylight I went over to where I shot No. 2, and there, sure enough, were three more hyenas.
Just then one of the three picked up the dead one by the back and carried it in his mouth, with his head thrown up, to keep it off the ground, only the feet trailing. He took it about sixty yards and put it under a bush. I lay still for a few minutes, and then the vultures came down, but the three hyenas drove them off. I then sat up and one of them saw me. As they were only 125 yards off, however, I had a good shot, and a hollow bullet behind the shoulder finished No. 3. The other two made off, so I left them.

In the afternoon one of my Somali men said there was a hyena keeping off the vultures. I went out with the glass and saw he had taken the last dead one about 200 yards up a stony hill with some large rocks on the top. He was just going back to the rocks after having made a sortie upon the vultures. I then went up toward the rocks, when out he came and took a good look, standing facing me.

It was a long shot, over 200 yards;
but by good luck I put a bullet in the center of his throat, killing him instantly. This made the fourth. Next morning I went to take a look and there was one with the dead one shot the day before.—

KEEP IN THE MIDDLE OF THE ROAD.

The silver men of Nevada should continually bear in mind that the primary object of the organization of Silver Leagues was to further the cause of free coinage. The people had been deceived by the old parties, both of which professed to favor free coinage in the States west of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio, while opposing it in the East. This double-dealing fooled all the people of the West for a while, and it appears to be deceiving some of them yet, but the large majority have had their eyes opened by the action of Congress on the Stewart bill, when Republicans and Democrats, under the leadership of Czar Reed, defeated the measure. Now, this majority ignore past party affiliations and in convention assembled nominated an electoral ticket and pledged it to vote only for a free coinage candidate for President of the United States, the Silver Leagues reserving the right to determine who the person should be.

Under the provisions of the Secret Ballot Act, the names of the candidates for President and Vice President and their political designation must precede the names of the electors. It is therefore necessary for the Leagues in convention to designate the Presidential candidate whose name shall head the ticket. As General Weaver is the only free coinage candidate for President, he must necessarily be selected for the purpose stated and a convention has been called to designate him.

To-day harmony prevails in the ranks of the Silver men, but the seeds of discord may be sown in the Convention and it therefore devolves upon the Leagues to be represented at Winemucca by intelligent and reliable men. To-day victory is assured and if the Winemucca Convention adheres to the original purpose of the Leagues the Weaver electors and Silver men nominated at Reno will be elected by large majorities. Every candidate on those tickets are members of the Silver League, pledged to vote for no man for Executive or Legislative office who is not pledged by platform and declaration to the free coinage of silver. That is as binding an obligation as can be assumed on the silver question and it ought to be satisfactory to every genuine silver man in the State.

But the enemies of the Silver men are busily at work endeavoring to create dissensions among them. Wall street money, it is rumored, has been sent to Nevada to disrupt the Silver party and defeat its candidates for electors, Senator and Representative. Everybody should guard against this influence, reason with those, if any there be, who are misled by it, and see that goldbugs and Wall street emissaries, who make pretensions to being silver advocates are exposed in their real colors, so that they cannot deceive the unwary and unsophisticated.

THE CRIME OF THE CENTURY.

The demonization of silver has been denounced by nearly every free coinage man in Congress and out of it as the crime of the century. It was secretly accomplished by Congress at the instigation of European bondholders, who, it is charged, paid through their agent, Ernest Seyd, over half a million dollars to get the bill through both Houses. The object was to reduce the volume of money by demonetizing one-half the amount in circulation and cause a disparity between the volume of currency and the population and business of the country. The consequences of this financial policy is told by the Rocky Mountain News, which says:

"A dearth of money has never failed to increase the value of the money unit and decrease the price of commodities for which that unit is exchanged. This condition bears oppressively upon the producer and consumer. The former has to sell at unremunerative prices while the latter is able to buy only sparingly at any price. The contraction of the currency of which demonetization was an incident, is the crime of the age. It is fast turning this free nation into a land of tenant farmers. Half the farms of the country are now either occupied by tenants or loaded with debts which their owners can never pay unless there is relief through just legislation. The same conditions are slowly but surely driving the laboring millions to the point of desperation. The time has come when the owners of colossal wealth, procured by class legislation, make no secret of dictating their terms to labor and automatically rejecting all overtures for peaceful arbitration of differences.

"Apart from the interest they have in common with the American people in checking plutocratic rule and its ruinous designs, the citizens of this State have vital reasons for uniting with unbroken forces in the struggle for emancipation from financial and industrial conditions that are fraught only with disaster and economic servitude. It is their supreme duty to keep the State in the front of the fight against a combination of money kings, who, unchecked, would inevitably leave the millions of this free land to choose between pauperism and anarchy."

FIRE EXPERIENCES.

KATE CLAXTON TALKS ABOUT HER MANY NARROW ESCAPES.

She Says That She Is In Reality a Coward Whenever She Hears the Cry of "Fire! Fire!"—Her Escapes Have Been Due to Extreme Coolness.

For over fifteen years Kate Claxton has been pursued by a peculiar form of ill luck. In spite of the little woman's pluck, which has made her a heroine of several fires and a dozen or so of panics, she rather shrinks from the subject, and it is with difficulty that she can be persuaded to tell of some of the escapes from the flames that she has had.

Her experience at Harris' theatre, when the cry of fire caused a panic, is only one of the several through which she has passed since 1873, the year of the celebrated Brooklyn fire. She had just been dragged from the stage by La Frochard, the hag in "The Two Orphans," when a reporter sought her out. The excitement of the fast alarm had left her nerves a little shattered, she explained. When reference was made to her apparent coolness she said that her manner showed nothing of what she really felt.

"I was very much wrought up. No one can tell what that cry of fire meant to me. I had begun to think that my evil genius had forgotten my existence, it seemed so long since the last panic. I was in an exceptionally good humor, and was sitting on the steps of the platform when the stampede began. As is always my first impulse, I rushed to see the flames. I did not doubt that the building was ablaze. At one glance, however, I saw there was no danger, except that which comes with every panic.

"You know," she said, "that I dread a panic more than I do a fire. My experience has been that more people are crushed to death in their efforts to get out than are ever burned alive. The escapes I have made, which some seem to think almost miraculous, were the result of coolness and presence of mind. When the cry of fire is given I never allow my impulse to run with the crowd to govern me. I imperil my life some what in order to seek out the danger and choose the best method of escaping from it. Often, it seemed to me afterward, had I followed the mad rush for the main exits I would never have escaped.

"I try to impress everybody with the same idea. First view the situation and figure up the chances for escape. When the Southern hotel in St. Louis was burned, for instance, at which time twenty-seven lives were lost, I never did any of the remarkable feats which have been attributed to me. The story is generally believed that I rolled down the burning stairs in wet blankets. The fact was I stood in the burning building until I had discovered a safe means of escape. The fact that I was one of the last to get out caused dozens of reports to be spread.

"My reputation as a fire fiend began the second year I acted in 'The Two Orphans.' I was playing in Brooklyn. I had thrown myself on the straw bed to sleep. I had closed my eyes, and for this reason did not discover the fire at first. When I was awakened and ordered to get up I saw the fire creeping along the top of the theater. Every one remembers the fatal ending. Four hundred persons were burned or trampled to death, among whom were three of the company. The next year, 1878, I was caught in the St. Louis fire. Ever since that I have been considered a forerunner of fires.

"I can only account for the numerous false alarms and panics from the fact that there are always some superstitious person in the audience who, believing me to be followed by an evil genius, shouts fire at the slightest provocation. More panics have been caused by lights in the streets and alleys than in any other way. Just a short time ago there was a panic in La Crosse, Wis., caused in the identical way as the one here. Another panic, which came near being a disaster, was caused by a street fight in front of the Owens opera house, in Charleston, S. C. When one starts it is impossible to check it. I have tried screaming to the audience, but it only makes it worse. My presence, often seems to check stampedes. At the close of the panic here I made up my mind to have a big sign printed with the words, 'It is only a fight.'

"Of all the theater panics I have been in only three were caused from fire. Several times the flies have been about without any one in the audience knowing it. I have become morbid on the subject of fire, and no matter how late at night it is, if an alarm is sounded I always dress and go. When the Fifth Avenue theater, in New York, burned I was present and watched it to the probable end. I do not desire the reputation of being brave in fires, for I am a great coward, so great a one that it often comes to me to seem self sustained. After such a fright an left completely unnerved."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE DIXON-SKELLY FIGHT.

The Brooklyn Boy Knocked Out in the Eighth Round.

BLAINE'S LETTER MADE PUBLIC.

Prisoners Break Jail at Flagstaff, Arizona—Orders to Life Saving Service Keepers—Nominated for Governor.

Skelly Knocked Out.
New Orleans, September 6.—Dixon knocked Skelly out in the eighth round.

The fight to-night in the Olympic Club arena was a contest between black and white, in which public betting was nearly all on the side of the African. The match was for the biggest money ever contested for by bantams. There was not the same interest in the fight to-night that prevailed in the stubborn contest twenty-four hours before because it looked like a cinch for the colored man. The odds were tempting, and they were taken by hundreds of betters who risked a few dollars at three to one. For moments during the day the odds were five to two, but later they went back to the original figures of three to one, while Dixon was unmistakably the favorite at three to ten. The crowd gathered in the big amphitheater with much less crushing and much more decorum than it did last night. The weather was warm, but the throng was good natured. Ordinarily not a black face is to be seen inside the arena, but to-night the club acceded to the natural desire on the part of the colored element to witness the engagement and set aside a space for them. The men were weighed early in the day. Dixon was just at weight, 118 pounds, while Skelly was under the limit, weighing but 113½. The crowd to-night was somewhat smaller than last night, but it was nevertheless immense. The gathering was large enough indeed to pay the prize and yet leave the Club a balance on its ledger, as a result of the investment. The two men reached the Club building an hour before hostilities were ready to begin. Dixon came first. Jack McLaughlin, the hero of last night's battle, chaperoned the Skelly party, with Reynolds and Kid Hogan by his side. Both men were confident as they waited for the call summoning them to battle. Vice President Sport led the procession. The little fighters went into the ring at 8:05. Skelly going to his opponent gave him a hearty shake of the hand. A general parley was held in the center of the ring, during which the referee gave instructions to the fighters and seconds. The men crossed to the center of the ring, where a hard shake commenced the battle.

First round—Cautious sparring. Pretty sparring indulged in when the Brooklyn boy backed away from a vicious left lead and landed a heavy right hander on his opponent's neck and followed it closely. Dixon put his left on his opponent's head and was then forced into his corner, where he clinched to avoid punishment.

Second—Skelly was the aggressor. The colored boy landed a good left, but received a stinging right. A moment later Dixon landed two heavy lefts and his opponent delivered a heavy punch on the colored boy's head. Dixon appeared to be getting better exchanges.

Third—Skelly was the aggressor and received a heavy left, which floored him. Both men landed heavy rights.

Fourth—Skelly got the worse of a hot exchange though he delivered a good right. The battle now took a hundred to one shot for Dixon, who went to his corner strong and unharmed, though he was breathing heavily from the work.

Fifth—Skelly skipped nimbly to the center of the ring, wearing a confident air and seemingly unharmed. Dixon delivered a heavy left on his head and gave him as good as he got. Dixon nearly knocked his opponent down with a heavy right and the round ended in a hot exchange, out of which Skelly came covered with blood. He seemed to be losing ground rapidly.

Sixth—Dixon landed a heavy left hand swing, though he got a terrible right on the ear. In a fearful exchange of blows Dixon landed two terrible punches on Skelly. The battle so far was all one way.

Seventh—The colored boy landed a heavy right and left and would have knocked out his man but for a clinch. Skelly landed back but was punched to the floor twice. The sound of the gong barely saved him for he was showing signs of the terrible punishment. As he sat in his corner he looked limp and beaten.

Eighth—The men boxed carefully and came to a clinch. From an attempt of Dixon to land on Skelly's head, Dixon forced his man into the corner where he delivered a heavy right and left hander and it was exceedingly astonishing how Skelly stood the punishment. He was gone however and in a heavy exchange he was beaten to the ground with terrible right and left hand swings and failed to respond at the call of time. Victory was accordingly awarded to Dixon.

The young Brooklyn amateur fought a game fight and that is all he can be said to have done. He showed fight while his strength was with him and only gave up when nature gave out. The Boston bantam's generalship was much admired and his strength and hitting ability is considered something wonderful.

At the end of the battle a challenge from Charley Mitchell to the winner of the Sullivan-Corbett contest was read and heartily laughed at. Nearly every other fighter at the ring-side wanted to fight somebody and Police Captain Barrett ordered all challengers out.

Blaine's Letter Made Public.
Augusta, Me., September 6.—The letter from James G. Blaine to Chairman Manly of the Republican State Committee, was made public to-day. In the letter he submits his views on the issues which he regards as strongest for the Republicans to urge before the people. He says the issue of greatest consequence is a tariff on imports and it will continue to be until a settlement is effected by a majority so large it will be tantamount to general acquiescence. The letter points out the successful operation of the McKinley bill and its vindication by experience. The position of the Democratic party is criticised and declared to be almost without parallel in the history of the country. Blaine contends that, although the Democrats declare Jefferson to be the founder of Democracy and its principles, Jefferson declared himself in favor of protection. Reciprocity and its advantages were explained and its advantages were explained and the benefits to the country from Republican administration since the war are set forth.

Nevada New Era is the name of a new paper the first number of which has reached the Journal office. It is a four-page handsomely printed weekly published at Lovelocks by Frank Francis. It believes in the future of Lovelocks, which is an agricultural as well as a mining center, and its faith is undoubtedly well-founded. As proof that it is in line with the people it runs the Silver Electoral ticket at the masthead. It has the Journal's best wishes for success.

WADSWORTH WARBLINGS.

Personal and Other Notes From the Lower Truckee.

WADSWORTH, Sept. 5. Editor JOURNAL.—Many of Wadsworth's noted men were going to attend the People's party convention at Reno to-day, but the train which should have arrived at 7:20 A. M. did not arrive until 4:45 P. M. Many would-be Ciceros and Demosthenes thus had their hopes blighted by this accident. They had hoped that the honor of the event would be chiefly centered in them, and that their names would be handed down to the coming generation. But "the best laid plans of mice and men oft go for naught." The hope was earnestly entertained that the convention would be postponed until the arrival of the Wadsworth delegation.

This morning an engine 181 with engineer Hottenhausen, a mile and a half east of Brown, struck a steamer which was crossing the track. The engine was derailed but the engineer derived much satisfaction from the complete annihilation of the animal. The wrecking train left early and at 1:45 the track was clear.

The Indian school was to have opened to-day, but when the teacher, Miss Lela Evans, arrived there were no scholars to be found. The Indian policeman was hustled up and it was soon known that the youngsters had gone to pick hops. The Almighty dollar has more charms for the Prute than does the school mistress' ruler.

Victor Geary, Jesse Whited, Roy Lewis and Alfred Blundell returned Friday night from a pleasant trip across the mountains. The boys went on horseback and report having a nice time.

The public school opened this morning with the same teachers as before. At an early hour the youngsters were seen wending their way to the school house with their books in hand. It is said that the first day has passed successfully and that it is a race between the boys and girls to see which will lead the graduating class.

Alfred Griawold, Walter MacPherson, James Curran and George Goodwin have returned after a pleasant drive around the lakes. The boys went loaded for game and returned a little the worse in complexion and appearance.

Harry Holland, a popular young brakeman, has returned from the hospital where he has been suffering from a maimed thumb.

The Misses Ede and O'Hare, the public school teachers, returned last night.

Mrs. J. F. George departed for Reno on the late train last night.

The Saturday night social dances are not very well attended.

A resident of Churchill came to town and after imbibing a quantity of the amber colored juice proceeded to make Rome howl. At last reports he was succeeding.

The report has gained footing that a new daily is to be established here. It is said that Frank Sisson, proprietor of the Sierra Nevada Tourist, is to be the editor. It is hoped that the project will be carried out.

LOVELOCK NOTES.

Items of Interest From the New Era.

Nearly 8,000 tons of wheat will be harvested on the Big Meadows.

The first shipment of wheat this season was made from Lovelocks to the Riverside Mills at Reno.

Lovelock is only eight miles distant from Humboldt Lake—a body of water fifteen miles long and from one to four miles wide. The lake is at present alive with ducks, geese, swans and other feathered creatures. Old-timers say this will be the best hunting season in years.

The first combined harvesters ever operated in the State are now working in the wheat fields of Thies and Pitt. The machines are each pulled by thirty-two horses, and in charge of a crew of five men. The machine on the Pitt farm has harvested as high as thirty tons of wheat a day.

Twenty-two acres of wheat harvested on the Pitt ranch Thursday yielded 606 sacks of grain, of an average of 141 pounds per sack, which is equivalent to nearly two tons of wheat to the acre. In the San Joaquin Valley, Cal., the average crop will not exceed three-quarters of a ton; here the average is a ton and a ton and a quarter.

There are between thirty and forty men at White Cloud working on buildings, roads, etc. P. Madigan is in charge of the graders, Sam Jolin has a force of shovelers Mr. McLane is at the head of the carpenters. The heavy grading in the canyon, it is expected, will be completed shortly, and soon the large sixty-ton furnaces from the East will arrive and be placed in position.

Yesterday morning a wagon load of giant powder left for the graders, which is the third shipment made from here since work commenced.

THE TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

A Tribune Allegation and a News Denial.

Messrs. Watson and Parkinson of the Carson Tennis Club were not permitted to enter the alleged State tournament at Reno on Saturday, the managers saying they entered too late. This action smacks very much of fear on the part of the Benolites that the Carson team would carry off the honors.—Tribune.

Messrs. Watson and Parkinson knew the date that the entries were to close and should have entered their names prior to that date. Besides, when they did conclude to go, they wanted to dictate terms to the managers of the tournament and proposed that Phillips and Moore should not compose one team. The Carson members had an equal chance with the Reno players and a year's advantage over them and they should have accepted the rules already laid down. Play fair, gentlemen.—News.

COLUMBUS DAY.

The Four Hundredth Anniversary of the Discovery of America to be Celebrated as a Holiday—Proclamation by the Governor.

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, CARSON CITY, Nev., Sept. 5, 1892. October 21st, A. D., 1892, will mark the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus. Benjamin Harrison, President of the United States of America, acting in accordance with the authority of the Congress thereof, has, by proclamation, appointed said day a general holiday, to the end that the people of the Union may join in fitting commemoration thereof.

Now, therefore, I, R. K. Colcord, Governor of Nevada, by virtue of the authority vested in me by law, and in furtherance of the foregoing official declaration, do hereby most earnestly recommend that the people of our State observe Columbus Day, the 21st day of October, A. D., 1892, as a general holiday, and I request that they refrain from toil and give themselves up to a patriotic celebration of the great event. Let it be a day of thanksgiving and instruction as well, for by the holding of suitable exercises in our schools and public places of assembly, appropriate rites in the several homes of worship, and by a generous display of our national colors, lessons of loyalty and patriotism, courage and ambition, of lasting good may be taught the nation's heirs.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the Great Seal of this State, at the Capitol in the City of Carson, this, the 5th day of September, A. D., 1892.

R. K. Colcord, Governor.

By the Governor: O. H. GARY, Secretary of State.

Better Than a Savings Bank.

If you have faith in the future prosperity of the city of Reno, Nevada, invest in well located town lots and you will surely double your money in the next few years. If you cannot buy a lot yourself you can take stock in the Reno Real Estate and Investment Co., and participate in the investments that this corporation will make. The company propose to purchase centrally located property and erect suitable buildings thereon, obtaining immediate revenue from rents and receiving all benefits from increase in values.

Shut Down.

That's what they call it when the mill closes and the work stops. The same term is applied to the liver when you suffer with Biliousness and Sick Headache. There is no action. A few doses of Simmons' Liver Regulator will soon set the liver going properly, and keep the bowels regular. Take the Regulator now and then to prevent any re-occurrence of these distressing symptoms.

The Comstock pay-roll for August amounted to $143,840, $6,407 more than the month previous.

The Blue Vetch.

A particularly beautiful wild flower from the Old World, now getting common in New England and giving pleasure to the lover of wild flower scenery, is the blue vetch, Vicia cracca. I was particularly glad to see it come off a conqueror in a battle with the well known couch grass, which usually acts the Goliath among other vegetation. It usually crowds out everything, and our Pennsylvania farmer regards it as one of his worst enemies.

On the seacoasts of New England, however, the yield of this grass is simply enormous, and the agriculturist employs it largely for hay. Its roots are annoying to the more southern farmer, as every little piece grows. It can never be got rid of. But here, where the same field is mowed over an indefinite number of years, it is of no consequence how the roots hold on. The more tenacious the better. But it is such a hard warrior among vegetation that nothing can grow where it grows, and a field of couch grass looks more like a field of some light kind of wheat under a careful farmer's hands.

Timothy grass here will not stand the attacks. Battalions of weeds contest the field with it. Couch grass alone sends forth defiance. But the blue vetch is a masterpiece. It grows up with the grass and at length overtops it, and forms beautiful blue patches over the whole field, looking like bright cerulean lakes over a gray arid plain. Fortunately the farmer does not mind, as it is as agreeable to the cattle as the grass. It is one of those rare instances where great beauty and utility go hand in hand together, and strike up a truly happy marriage.—Thomas Meehan in Philadelphia Ledger.

The Chinese Cuisine.

"In passing through Chinese towns," said the Rev. A. T. Wright, of Milwaukee, to the writer, "the astonishingly large number of cookshops interests and attracts the foreign passer by. One's curiosity is often aroused to know the ingredients of the messes he sees being concocted. These places are unpleasantly pressed upon the pedestrian, for the front is invariably open to the street, and in order to tempt customers by the sight and smell of viands the cook prepares his dishes over a charcoal fire in full view, and sets samples of his materials and his bill of fare out on a show-board before him. Tables and stools are placed in the rear, and here the hungry may banquet.

"The Frenchman is not the only one who has his frogs' legs and snail soup, for the Celestial, too, reveals in these delicacies and many more stranger than these. Snakes and eels alike know the frypan, and when skinned and dressed appear very much alike. Many varieties of poisonous snakes are regarded as a choice morsel and are stewed in lard and eaten as a relish, and a multitude of other insects are deemed edible."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

She Purchased Them.
She wasn't exactly old, but the discriminating observer could see that she hadn't seen the inside of a schoolroom for at least ten years. The shopman threw down piece after piece of fleecy white material before her critical eyes, but none of them seemed to claim her unreserved admiration. She was taking a great deal of his time and the silk counter was crowded, so he decided to play his trump card.

Holding up a length of crepe de chine so that it fell in a perfect cataract of shimmering folds, he remarked, reflectively, as if to himself alone, "The best thing for graduating purposes we have had in the store this year." The effect was instantaneous, and in another minute the tactful salesman was measuring off a full pattern for his well pleased patron.—Kate Field's Washington.

"Hens," says B. F. Taylor, "are vocal but not musical, unless one has an ear for filing and saving. Their language is too rich in consonants! It is decidedly Saxon and without the softening accents of the Norman French. The call of something 'fown' is quite as intelligible as the town crier with his bell. The defiant voice of the cock is a challenge in honest vernacular, and his triumphant crow is a burrah in plain English. The announcement of an egg laid is expressive if not eloquent. The mother's cluck is a veritable baby talk, and the yep, yep, yep of the little chicks denotes happiness at home."

How soon these little fellows learn the cluck, cluck of the mother warning them that the robber hawk is soaring watchfully above, seeking whom he may devour.

The blue jay hates yet dreads the hawk, and frequently insults it by following and imitating its notes so exactly as to deceive those well acquainted with both.—Troy Times.

PRAIRIE FIREMEN.
Their Engine is a Freshly Slaughtered Cow Dragged Over the Line of Flames.

Whoever heard of killing a horse or an ox as the first step to be taken toward putting out a prairie fire? What dweller in the Dakotas has not heard of it? For it is frequently done by the settlers of the new northwest, where prairie fires are a greatly dreaded menace to life and property. Every dweller of the great northwest is more or less familiar with prairie fires. They have often at nightfall seen their lurid lights in the distant horizon, or by day their huge volumes of smoke rising and bending with the clouds, and many are even familiar with the consuming march of the flames themselves. Probably the first intimation the settler receives of an approaching fire comes from the falling of burned particles of grass that have been carried long distances by strong air currents. Later on smoke may be seen on the distant horizon, which increases in volume and blackness until the whole sky may be darkened, or if the night be coming on the flames will light up the whole landscape and their glow will be reflected above. The wise Dakotan has his farm or ranch protected by fire-breaks. These are usually made by plowing two strips a few furrows wide and several rods apart and burning the grass between. There is but little likelihood of putting out a Dakota prairie fire during the day, as the wind, which is almost invariably blowing, and which the fire seems to greatly increase in force, never lulls until the coming of night. Then, though there is no dewfall in that region, the fire burns less fiercely and may be at times entirely extinguished. The most successful method of putting out a fire, and one frequently employed, is to kill a horse or cow and, splitting the carcass, drag it along the fire line and over the flames, which are thus extinguished. This is done by attaching long wire ropes to two limbs of the carcass, to each of which is hitched a horse, on which is an experienced rider. One of these horsemen rides on either side of the line of fire, and by skillful reining they draw the body of the dead animal directly over the flames. Sometimes a fresh hide, weighted down with pieces of iron fastened to it, is used instead of the carcass of an animal. By this method a line of fire twenty miles in length may be extinguished in one night. Men on foot usually follow after the horsemen and put out any fire that may remain after they have passed. The scene presented by such a company of fire fighters is extremely weird and one which a beholder is not likely to forget. Fortunately it is if those interested complete their work before the coming of dawn, for if they do not the rising of the wind may send the fire leaping over the area of country they have labored to save, and blackened plains and smoldering heaps that mark the sites of former ranches and homesteads will tell the oft told story of the Dakota prairie fire.—Chicago Herald.

THE "August Flower"
I had been troubled five months with Dyspepsia. The doctors told me it was chronic. I had a fullness after eating and a heavy load in the pit of my stomach. I suffered frequently from a Water Brash of clear matter. Sometimes a deadly sickness at the Stomach would overtake me. Then again I would have the terrible pains of Wind Colic. At such times I would try to belch and could not. I was working then for Thomas McHenry, Druggist, Cor. Irwin and Western Ave., Allegheny City, Pa., in whose employ I had been for seven years. Finally I used August Flower, and after using just one bottle for two weeks, was entirely relieved of all the trouble. I can now eat things I dared not touch before. I would like to refer you to Mr. McHenry, for whom I worked, who knows all about my condition, and from whom I bought the medicine. I live with my wife and family at 39 James St., Allegheny City, Pa. Signed, JOHN D. COX.

Putting Him Off.
He proposed on the way home from church one Sunday evening. She was too young to marry and did not want him; but she said "Yes," with the stipulation that he should get her father's consent. The young man was happy until he discovered the next day that his adored one's father had been dead several years.—London Tit-Bits.

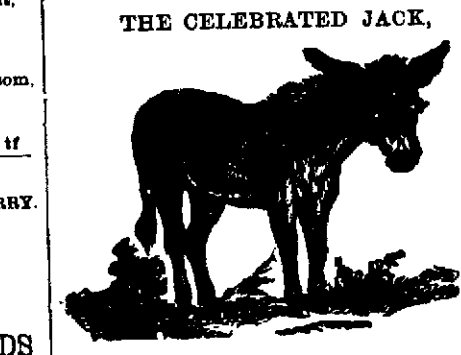

The "Cursed Flower of India."
The Erythrina indica, a beautiful flower of the basil family, which grows wild in India, is supposed to be under a curse, and although the bloom is perfection itself, both in odor and in color, no true Hindoo would touch it for all the world. They tell you that it originally grew in the "Garden of India," in the center of heaven, where it was hourly worshiped by all the denizens of that blessed abode. Krishna stole it and brought it to earth, but all who worshiped at its shrine after that event died before they could leave the spot. On this account India is shunned as if it were a poisonous serpent.—St. Louis Republic.

A Swimmer's Feat.
A professional swimmer named Taylor attempted to swim from Folkestone to Dover with his hands and feet tied, a somewhat difficult performance, seeing that the distance he sought to cover is six miles. This novel attempt naturally attracted a good number of spectators. He started at 8 o'clock in the morning, but made very slow progress for two miles, after covering which he began to show signs of fatigue, and shortly after he was taken out of the sea in an exhausted condition.—London Tit-Bits.
